FANZUN

Starting situation and idea

The breathtaking panorama of the Upper Engadin Lakes was the main reason why the client acquired a plot in the amidst the villas dotting the slope. An impressive and unique villa in the high-end segment was to be built.

Challenges

The building needed to safeguard the private sphere of the client, yet offer panoramic views from various vantage points. The client needed a single service level in the house as well as a direct link to the ski slopes. The layout was to be implemented along clean architectural lines and forms.

Approach

Nature and climate made up the basis for design. The layout resembles an ice crystal with hexagonal structures. The inside of the building is designed in various heights and expanses. The sense of space is created solely with the help of natural materials.
